

NEIGHBOURHOOD SUPPORT HAMILTON INC

CITY BULLETIN APRIL 2019

BURGLARIES AND BREAK-INS IN YOUR AREA

Taken from the police public website here are the burglary numbers by police area from 1 – 28 February 2019. To protect the privacy of individuals, the police remove sensitive details revealing specific “time and place”. The total for the year so far is in brackets. There were 66 reports of unlawful entry with intent to burglary, break and enter during February.

Please note that police named areas do not exactly match Neighbourhood Support Group areas. If your area is not mentioned, it is not available from the police: members can view these police statistics on line.

Are you up-to-date on new ways of communicating with Police? Things have changed! Check it out here!

Emergency: call 111

Calling 111 is free from public telephones and mobile phones.

When you dial 111 you will be asked which emergency service you want: Police, Fire or Ambulance.

For Police an emergency is anything that is happening now, or has just happened, where:

- People are in danger
- Property is in danger of loss or damage
- A crime is being, or has just been committed, and the person or persons responsible for it are nearby
- There is a major public inconvenience

An emergency TXT service for people with hearing or speech difficulties is available if you have difficulty hearing or talking on the phone. You can register for the 111 TXT service.

Non-emergency

Reporting online

You can now report lost property or intentional property damage (to buildings, vehicles and other possessions) online.

This is phase one of the Police Online Reporting Trial as they modernise their service channels to make it easier for people to engage with police.

Police recommend using Google Chrome or the latest version of Safari to complete this report.

When using a tablet or smartphone to access the online reporting tool, a Wi-Fi connection may provide the best performance.

If you are using the online tool for the first time, and experiencing a loading issue, Police suggest that you refresh your browser.

Other online options are reporting:

- Anonymously through CRIMESTOPPERS 0800 555 111
- Non-urgent road incidents via Community Roadwatch
- Report SCAMS and cybercrime to NETSAFE

Language and communication difficulties

If you have difficulty communicating with police because of language, some options available include:

- A friend or family member. You may use a friend or family member as your interpreter for talking to the Police.
- Language Line. Police can provide an interpreter on the telephone. This is a free service called Language Line(link is external). Ask for Language Line when you call police or visit a police station and tell them what language you speak. Language Line is only available from 9:00am to 6:00pm Monday to Friday and Saturday between 9am-2pm.
- Bilingual communications staff. A number of our communications staff are bilingual, covering about 18 languages in total, including Mandarin.
When communicating to Police, ensure you're able to tell an English-speaking person which language you do speak using the English terminology.
Regardless of the language you speak, don't hesitate to call 111 in an emergency.

And we have our own Hamilton City Prevention Group: email

Ethnic and Asian liaison officers

Police have special officers working in ethnic communities around the country. They work with communities to help them understand and access police services, provide information to police about community concerns and to work with police investigating and preventing crime involving ethnic communities.

They are happy to listen to your concerns and work together with you to improve safety in ethnic communities.
